

Software Engineer, Lead or Mid-level

Washington, DC

full-time or contract-to-hire

Founded in 2013, Tuple Health is a growing healthcare design and technology startup. As the focus of healthcare shifts from reactive treatment to proactive care management, we're helping providers transform how they deliver healthcare. Our tools and recommendations improve quality of care at the scale of physician networks and hospital systems, as well as the individual patient-physician relationship.

We discover, design, and build ways for healthcare providers to deliver better care at a lower cost. Our customers include academic centers, hospital systems and some of the largest oncology practices in the country.

Software Engineering at Tuple Health

Engineering for healthcare requires more than technical excellence. It requires empathy and an ability to situate technology in context. Our engineers work closely alongside user researchers, data scientists, clinicians, and designers to explore the complex human system that is healthcare. Along the way we're engaging with fascinating engineering problems across the entire stack. Our technical foundation consists of great engineers, professional development practices, and the best tools available (including TypeScript, React, D3, Vega, Mapbox, Node, MySQL, GitHub, and many Amazon Web Services).

Our teams are oriented around products rather than specific technologies, layers, or domains of expertise. Every engineer contributes to data visualization, application architecture, service architecture, data modelling, data warehousing, security, devops, and our shared development practices. We strive to improve by seeking advice from each other and sharing insights when we learn something new.
